No. 1047, dated 22*nd July* 1908.

The attention of the public is drawn to the Notice published in the Mysore Gazette dated 24th January 1901, warning them against meddling with the Cauvery Power Transmission Line. In spite of the distinct warning, it is regretted that accidents have happened resulting in loss of life in some cases.

2. It is reported that on the 31st of May 1908, a boy of about 18 years of age accidentally slipped from a tree and caught hold of one of the primary wires of No. 2 Bungalow Circuit in the Lal-Bagh road in Bangalore City, and this resulted in his immediate death.

3. Another Transmission Line from Sivasamudram for the electric lighting of the Mysore City will be shortly erected, and it is necessary to warn the public and the villages along the line, of the risk they run in interfering or meddling with the Transmission Lines. The Electric Transmission Line should not be confounded with the Telegraph lines in which the current is not very strong. The former line carries a powerful current and it would result in instant death if any person touch it with the naked hand, a stick or even a kite string. Should the line break and the ends fall to the ground, they should not on any account be touched, but the matter should be reported to the nearest authorities. The poles, wires or the glass insulators that carry the wires should not in any way be meddled with, either from curiosity or mischievous motives, and any attempt to meddle with them will be seriously dealt with by the Government.
